

-And, ladies and gentlemen, in the other corner...

VICTORIA (CP) — The B.C. legislature turned into a prizefighting ring again Tuesday as both sides trotted out their heavyweights — Health Minister Rafe Mair, Energy Minister Bob McClelland and New Democrats Gary Laik, Frank Howard and Graham Lea — in another verbal punch-up over night sittings.

The government won on a split decision 26-15 after a vote was finally taken to adjourn today.

The NDP filibustered for an hour past the normal 6 p.m. adjournment, blasting government members for laziness.

The same tactic has already been used twice to no avail during the lengthy 4½-month session. The government still refuses to schedule two night sittings a week — a normal practice in past sessions.

Lea said the government is either lazy or scared it might lose a vote with only a five-seat majority which at times has been reduced to two because of the illness of some government members.

During the debate deputy speaker Walter Davidson spent much of the time asking members to withdraw offensive remarks and warning MLAs they were clearly straying from debate on adjournment time.

Government members declined to say why there are no night sittings, instead attacking the NDP for poor attendance in the house and failure to offer constructive criticism during the session.

Terrace to get a million

by CARLA WILSON
Herald Staff Writer
Terrace will receive $40,789.83 from the B.C. Buildings Corporation (BCBC) and $1,066.24 from the provincial government in grants in lieu of taxes.

The provincial and federal governments don't pay property taxes, said Bob Hallor, city administrator. However, they give grants instead of taxes on their improved lands. This amount is the same as the taxes would be.

Legislation passed a couple of years ago by the provincial government ensures municipalities will receive the full amount in grants that they would have been charged in taxes.

The provincial government is invoiced based on the general municipal and regional mill rate. The money from the government goes into the general revenue fund, said Hallor.

The municipality takes in the money which is collected for the Kitimat-Stikine Regional District, also.

BCBC will pay $40,789.83 to Terrace municipality and $1,066.24 to the regional district.

Some provincial property isn't owned by BCBC. This is mainly executive offices and forest ranger property. For this property, $1,066.24 will be paid to Terrace municipality and $51.67 will be paid to the regional district for a total of $1,117.91.

BCBC will give Kitimat municipality $1,361.16 and the regional district $74.34 in lieu of taxes. The provincial government will pay $1,321.77 to Kitimat and $72.19 to the regional district for a total of $1,393.96.

The total amount of money to be given out in grants this year to 97 municipalities through BCBC is $6,718,000. The provincial government will pay 64 municipalities in B.C. $1.57 million in lieu of taxes.

He was brother's keeper

MOSCOW (AP) — Doctors found the unborn embryo of a 40-year-old man's twin in the man's chest after he complained of pains and breathing difficulty, a Soviet newspaper says.

Surgeons at the Azerbaijan State Institute for Medical Training thought at first that the man had a benign tumor, said the Baku Worker, a newspaper in the Azerbaijan capital.

But they found "a thick-walled, many-chambered cyst of a very large size that turned out to be an undeveloped human embryo," chief physician Panakh Alievich Aliev is quoted as saying.

"In the course of further examinations the surgeons found hair and bone."

Environment group meets

The Skeena Protection Coalition will hold a meeting at 8 p.m. in the basement of the Terrace library Thursday.

The public hearings on B.C. Hydro's use of herbicides will be one of the issues discussed.

The blood donor clinic was a real family affair. Here one father gives his pint of blood and explains it all to his son. See page 3 for story and photos.

TOLD TO GET LOAN

Student waits for pay

OTTAWA (CP) — Pamela Robinson took a summer job under a government youth employment program nearly eight weeks ago but has yet to receive any pay.

Her insistent complaints — she's down to $34.13 of savings and owes half of this month's rent — prompted this advice from a manpower official: Take your contract with the government, including a notice of payment to come, and present it as collateral for a loan from a chartered bank.

Ms. Robinson, a 23-year-old English student at Trent University during the school term, is a constituent of Bill Domm, a Progressive Conservative MP for Peterborough, who called in the Commons Tuesday for an investigation into payroll delays and borrowing from the banks by students who haven't received their funds.

Domm said in an interview he has received the same complaint from students running five of about 40 projects, worth about $328,000, in his constituency and he's worried that this is the tip of an iceberg.

A spokesman for the youth employment program confirmed that long delays have occurred and will continue for the next week or two. The spokesman said advice to get a bank loan is reasonable, and the government will reimburse them for the interest.

The spokesman said the delays are due primarily to bureaucratic confusion over who had the authority to sign the payroll cheques and that the problem has been solved.

"The projects will be over before the cheques are in," Domm said. "They're putting these people under an unreasonable strain." Nationally, the summer youth employment program is supposed to cost the federal government $110 million for the administration of projects and salaries to the students who run them, about 70,000 in all.

Students still looking

Fifty percent of students in this area are still seeking work, says Wendy Mercer, officer-in-charge of local Student Employment Centre.

The number of student jobs in B.C. and the Yukon has increased slightly over the last year, but so has the number of students seeking employment so the competition for jobs is high.

According to Mercer, 137 student placements have been made through the centre here to date. She also said that a number of students have found work and not reported it. About 22 percent of those registered found their own summer jobs and 25 percent of them have found work through the centre.

Mark encourages those students who have not registered to do so now, and check back every day because jobs are continually coming in. "Don't sit around waiting for employers to call you," she said. Keep bugging them, do a little leg-work, and generally make it known that you are ready and willing to work."

Fish derby cancelled

The Skeena Mall-Daily Herald fishing derby originally scheduled for July has been cancelled. Mall manager Dennis Briscoe cited low fish levels as the principle reason for cancelling the derby.

"We didn't want to encourage any additional sport fishing during the Spring salmon run," he said.

"The derby may be held again if the salmon stocks improve."

B.C. FIRM

Last chance for coal deal

OTTAWA (CP) — Representatives of at least one British Columbia coal company will be making a pitch this week to try to salvage the fading chances of a multi-billion dollar coal deal with Japan.

Teck Corp. officials and government representatives will meet with Canadian National Railways officials and perhaps federal cabinet ministers in hopes of getting concessions that would allow them to lower the price they can offer the Japanese.

Efforts to swing the on-again, off-again deal hinge on the cost of developing rail lines to get the coal from northeastern B.C. fields to port in Prince Rupert.

Sources say the initial price offered to the Japanese during recent negotiations in Tokyo was more than $30 a tonne.

Japanese steel companies apparently balked at that price, considerably higher than the $68 a tonne they now pay for coal from southeastern B.C.

The real question is the cost of building a 115-kilometre railway spur line, including five tunnels, to link the coal fields with existing rail lines.

The provincially-owned B.C. Rail company originally said the line would cost $215 million, while CNR estimated the cost at only $140 million. B.C. cabinet minister, said Tuesday he has learned the B.C. government now two new independent engineering studies which say costs of the tunnels has increased to $180 million from $140 million.

He said the cost of the entire project, including development of mines, rail lines and port facilities, now is close to $2 billion.

After attempts to reach a federal-provincial deal on cost sharing fell through last month, B.C. Premier Bill Bennett announced his province would "go it alone" in developing the spur line.

But Ottawa and the CNR are involved to the tune of almost $300 million, including upgrading of the CNR mainline between Prince George and Prince Rupert and developing coal-loading facilities at the port.

Sources say the coal companies could ask CNR to stretch to 15 years the time over which it wants to recover its investment, allowing the companies to offer a lower initial price for the metallurgical coal.

Perrault said the government is willing to invest money to get the project going if it thinks it can get the money back in a reasonable length of time.

But Ottawa is reluctant "to pour in huge subsidies to pay for a project that could be ahead of its time."

Such subsidies at the expense of Canadian taxpayers would help only Japanese steel companies and multinational coal companies, he added.

Asked whether he thought B.C. could go it alone, Perrault simply said: "That's a lot of money."

Province moves on jurisdiction of fish control

VICTORIA (CP) — The B.C. government wants stronger powers over the control of fisheries to eliminate the overlap of jurisdiction with Ottawa, Premier Bill Bennett said Tuesday.

The provincial government has previously shied away from the strong Newfoundland position of insisting that the federal government turn over fisheries responsibility to the province.

However, a number of federal-provincial conflicts in recent years seems to have swayed the B.C. government's position.

Bennett, whose message is being carried to the preliminary round of constitutional talks in Montreal this week by Inter-governmental Relations Minister Garde Gaudin, said B.C. is not "looking for grass" from the federal government.

"We're just looking for ways in which the public gets better administration," he said.

A spokesman for the federal ministry said the federal government puts about $75 million a year into fisheries management and recovers about the same amount.

Fat may help him win the long swim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Because he's fit and fat, Jim Massey has a good chance of finishing an intended 64-kilometre swim to Vancouver from Nanaimo, a biologist at University of Victoria and an expert in cold water survival, said Tuesday.

"He has got enough skin fat to enable him to resist cold better than the average person," said Dr. John Hayward of the 40-year-old wholesale lumber salesman.

"He's also got the kind of ego it takes to push himself hard."

Asked why he wants to make the swim, Massey said: "Because, to coin a phrase, it's there. It's never been done. I like the idea of being first."

"Also, I want to swim the strait before McGeer paves it over," Massey said, in a reference to B.C. Science Minister Pat McGeer's proposal for a fixed link to Vancouver Island.

The west-east route across the strait, which Massey plans to swim July 31, hasn't been kilometre Nanaimo-Sechart crossing.

Massey says he'll start from the Departure Bay ferry dock near Nanaimo July 31 at 9 a.m., wearing a cutoff wetsuit and lathered with a cold-resisting lanolin. Hayward recommended the lanolin and the late July start because that is when water temperatures in the strait reach their highest, about 19 degrees.

Massey said he has been working up to such a challenge for 15 years by staying in shape with marathon running, cross-country skiing, cycling and recently 10-kilometre pool swims.

Policeman dies here

A 29-year-old RCMP constable, Scott Coomer, died here Tuesday evening. He had been living in Terrace for one year.

An autopsy will be performed in Prince Rupert, said Coroner Jim Lynch. He will have the results in about two weeks.

Drunk driving: What is the solution?

By GAIL DOTINGA
Herald Staff Writer

She knew she had too much to drink, but thought the chances of getting stopped were slim. But the odds were against her, she was stopped by police on her way home and was later charged with impaired driving and fined $350.

Why did this Terrace resident drive if she knew she was drunk?

"I guess I was too lazy to get a cab. This person is one of many who stand before the judge day after day on charges related to impaired driving."

Last year in the Terrace area, there were 286 cases of people tested for driving over the .08 limit. So far this year, 215 people have been stopped for impaired driving.

Some feel that in order to get a handle on the problem, heavier sentences have to be imposed.

Judge Darrall Collins, however, believes that the amount of the fine makes no difference.

"When I first came here, I gave out lighter fines than what I do now. Since then I've increased it substantially and it has not had any deterrent effect."

Collins said that if he gave out the maximum fines, the jails would be full of defaulters.

"No two people who come before me are the same with the same circumstances and therefore, I cannot impose a set fine or sentence for everybody."

At first, the automatic suspension of the driver's license initially acted as a deterrent, but not anymore, said Collins.

It is general policy not to send first offender to jail, but the criminal code does provide substantial sentences for second and third time offender.

However, it's up to the Crown counsel to prove earlier convictions before a jail sentence can be imposed.

"The times have been so few that counsel has done that. I don't know why, but that must be their policy," said Collins.

"The politicians keep talking about the crowded conditions in jails today so sending more people there could just lead to a bigger problem."

Penalties do not solve the problem, noted Collins. He feels that alcohol abuse is the place to attack the problem.

The judges in full support of a detoxification centre in Terrace.

"B.C. has one of the highest alcohol consumption rates in Canada and as long as that remains, we will have people drinking and driving."

Meanwhile, in an attempt to control the situation, the RCMP have increased their patrols on the weekends and will continue to set up roadblocks on the holidays.

You can't live wherever you like

NEWS BRIEFS

OTTAWA (CP) — People may have the right to work in whatever province they want, but thousands have been refused government jobs because of where they live, a spokesman for the Public Service Commission said Tuesday.

Gaetan Jeaurond said the commission's system, for hiring people would break down if it opened government jobs to every qualified person in the country.

Prime Minister Trudeau told delegates at the Liberal party convention in Winnipeg on the weekend that the federal government must stand behind the rights of Canadians to work in the province of their choice.

"It's the right of every Canadian to move where he wants, to seek a job where he wants and buy property where he wants in this country," Trudeau said.

"What Trudeau said was quite valid," Jeaurond said. "People should be able to work where they want."

"The elementary fact is that for the great portion of positions it wouldn't be bright to open it up to everyone in Canada. The system would break down."

As a result, "tens of thousands" of people have been turned down for jobs because of where they live.

But those refusals have been made in accordance with guidelines established by the commission which is responsible for all the government's hiring, firing and promotion, he said.

He said the guidelines were based on the commission's interpretation of the Public Service Employment Act, passed by Parliament in the 1960s.

A qualified person for a typing, filing or clerical job could probably be found within a local area. Opening such a competition to every qualified person in the country would result in an unmanageable flood of applications, he said.

However, a national competition would probably have to be held to find someone qualified for a more senior position.

Thus, there was nothing unusual about the case of a federal government employee in Ottawa who was told he could not be considered for a federal job in Halifax because he was not a resident of Nova Scotia, Jeaurond said.

The man gave an interview to an Ottawa newspaper after Trudeau's speech in Winnipeg, but did not want to be identified for fear of losing his job.

He had applied for a job as an investigation officer with the employment and immigration department. But the department replied in a letter that "recruitment activity is restricted to public servants working in Nova Scotia and to residents of Nova Scotia," so his candidacy was not accepted.

Newfoundland and Nova Scotia have been criticized for passing legislation giving preference to workers from their province.

Newfoundland laws governing offshore oil work, passed several years ago, require oil companies to give first refusal on jobs and material sales to Newfoundlanders and Newfoundlanders.

The Nova Scotia legislature has approved a similar bill that gives cabinet the power to regulate offshore oil exploration. That bill has not yet been proclaimed law.

LONDON (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan reiterated Tuesday Canada's desire to see all countries adopt nuclear non-proliferation guarantees.

Referring particularly to "worrisome press allegations" that Pakistan has developed an atomic bomb with the aid of Libya, MacGuigan outlined to journalists the nature of future reprisals which could be taken against Pakistan.

"I don't think there is any single step that we can take which would be decisive in anything that Pakistan may do but we may try to formulate a policy dealing with the problem of proliferation; atomic techniques and nuclear development."

If Pakistan and Libya continue such nuclear development, MacGuigan said, "there could be a diplomatic response — in terms of aid or in terms of economic reprisals."

People wasting away

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Injured people are wasting away in chronic care hospitals instead of receiving help to return to useful roles in society, says the newly-elected president of the Canadian Rehabilitation Council for the Disabled.

Dr. David Symington, head of Kingston General Hospital and Queen's University Rehabilitation Centre, said in an interview that Canadians have no hope of equal access to crucial rehabilitation programs because there is a lack of manpower, money and facilities. It's a situation "tremendously wasteful" of human life and government funds, he said.

Symington cited the case of a young woman who was confined to a psychiatric hospital for four years with a head injury and paralysis, at a cost of $26,000 a year. Rehabilitation treatment — costing $8,000 — allowed her to return home and live with her parents.

Vendors make stand

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite claims to the contrary, vending machine merchants aren't just junk food peddlers, a member of the Canadian Automatic Merchandising Association told nutritionists Tuesday.

The first vending machine was invented by Nero 2,500 years ago to dispense holy water," Roy McKinney, association treasurer and former president, told members of the Society for Nutrition Education.

up with accusations of serving junk foods and being asked if he belonged to the Mafia.

McKinney said the association, which counts about 330 vending firms across Canada, is very concerned with the quality of its foods.

"I'm not pretending all vending machine snacks are or should be nutritious but I am saying nutritious snacks can be found in vending machines," McKinney said. "We have a responsibility to carry healthy food options."

Cattlemen make demands

WINNIPEG (CP) — Cattlemen want tax concessions and removal of tariffs on feed grains imported from the United States to help them cope with the drought on the Prairies.

An emergency meeting of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association concluded Tuesday there may not be enough western feed grains available to meet demands this winter. Any shortfall would be disastrous if the drought continues to stifle growth of hay and pastures. After the day-long meeting with government officials, association president Jim Boyd of Lloydminster, Alta., said cattlemen are generally pleased with federal and provincial help regarding direct payments to maintain breeding herds and feed transportation assistance.

"But we're concerned with the availability of feed grain on the Prairies and we want to be sure the grain is going to be available."

Health care studied

OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Lloyd Axworthy says he would consider opening a sanatorium in Canada for Indo-Chinese refugees suffering from tuberculosis who now are being held for lengthy periods in Southeast Asian camps.

But Axworthy stressed in an interview Tuesday that such a decision would require the agreement of the provinces because they are responsible for health care.

The minister was reacting to a suggestion from a former Liberal cabinet minister that the federal government open to the refugees one of the tuberculosis hospitals closed here in recent years because the disease is no longer a major health problem in Canada.

Iona Campagnolo, a former sports minister who was defeated in the British Columbia riding of Skeena in the May 22, 1979, election, made the suggestion in an interview this week after returning from a two-week tour of several refugee camps in Thailand.

Who should judge?

QUEBEC (CP) — Walter McLeish, Canada's top civil aviation administrator, says he believes the competence of air traffic controllers can only be judged by other controllers.

Appearing Tuesday before the federal commission of inquiry into air safety, McLeish defended the transport department's handling of cases involving alleged irregularities in the work of air traffic controllers.

Nuclear limit proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Atomic Energy Control Board has proposed tighter maximum radiation exposure limits for the public in nuclear reactor licensing requirements issued Tuesday.

The revised exposure limits were included in a series of guidelines released by the board, the federal nuclear regulatory agency, to solicit public comment on proposed safety requirements for licensing nuclear power plants.

Exposure levels are broken down for the first time into five categories based on different classes of accidents ranging from the most serious but least probable occurrence to the most likely but least dangerous.

JEAN CHRETIEN... expresses satisfaction

Chretien meets with provinces

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Jean Chretien and ministers representing the provinces met Tuesday to air their views on six of the 12 items on Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional shopping list.

Talks on the remaining six topics continue today behind closed doors in the second day of an intense summer round of talks which takes the ministers to Toronto next week and Vancouver the following week.

The 11 governments will finalize their positions at the end of August in preparation for a constitutional summit Sept. 8-12 in Ottawa.

Attorney-General Roy Romanow of Saskatchewan, who is co-chairman of the conference, said the delegations presented their positions "on the opening day of a very difficult round of bargaining."

Chretien expressed satisfaction that Quebec's Parti Quebecois government has swallowed the May 20 defeat of its sovereignty-association referendum and seems willing to negotiate.

Presenting his government's position, Claude Morin, Quebec's intergovernmental affairs minister, said the Quebec government accepts its loss and will not try to achieve sovereignty-association through the talks.

"We shall act accordingly."

But at the same time, Morin said, he will only consider the talks successful if changes put forward by past Quebec governments, as well as the Parti Quebecois, are accepted.

The federal government and the other provinces urged Quebecers to vote no in the referendum by promising sweeping constitutional change. Now they are waiting for the rest of Canada to deliver.

"They expect to find on the federal side an original, imaginative approach to solving problems so that they are somehow a part of an ongoing dispute," Morin said in his opening statement.

"Otherwise they will feel that they have been had." The issues discussed Tuesday were natural resource ownership and interprovincial trade, communications, family law, the Senate, the Supreme Court of Canada and fisheries.

Today the ministers turn their attention to offshore resources, powers affecting the economy, a statement of principles, a charter of human and linguistic rights, equalization payments and the bringing to Canada of the British North America Act.

Prime Minister Trudeau proposed an 11-item list for discussion last month when he invited the 10 premiers to his 24 Sussex Dr. residence in Ottawa. At the request of the premiers, fisheries was added to round the list off at 12 items.

The federal government issued two statements Tuesday, outlining its position on communications and the economy. In its communications statement, Ottawa appeared to give ground to Quebec in its longstanding claim for wider jurisdiction, offering to transfer control over telephone companies in Newfoundland, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia to the provinces.

The remaining six provinces already regulate their telephone companies. But Ottawa would only grant the four provinces control over the utilities within their borders. It would ask all 10 provinces to relinquish jurisdiction over the interprovincial and international operations of the companies.

International oil situation. Miss MacDonald told the Commons the government's refusal to set a target for energy self sufficiency means that instead of becoming self-reliant, Canada will become increasingly dependent on unstable sources of imported oil during the 1980s.

The government, preoccupied with implementation of a new domestic oil pricing agreement, "has failed to comprehend the threat that oil poses to the peace and security of the world and to international order as we know it," she said.

Energy Minister Marc Lalonde and other Liberal MPs turned aside the charges, saying the Conservatives are still obsessed with the energy-dominated election campaign they lost in February.

Lalonde insisted the government would not peg coming higher prices for oil and gas to the whims of spiralling rates set by the oil producing nations. Ian Waddell, energy critic for the New Democratic Party, said the Liberals and Conservatives were continuing to fight the last election instead of addressing the present need for development of new domestic energy sources.

Miss MacDonald drew particular attention to forecasts of world oil shortages of some eight million barrels a day by 1990.

Halt to harassment ordered

QUEBEC (CP) — The head of the federal inquiry into air safety issued a stern warning Tuesday to a Transport Canada manager to stop harassing an aviation inspector who testified before the commission in January.

Mr. Justice Charles Dubin also heard testimony that the emergency evacuation of an Air Canada L-1011 at Los Angeles Airport last month resulted from the mistaken belief of a member of the ground staff that one of the plane's engines was on fire.

The inquiry — which was adjourned until July 14 because Mr. Justice Dubin's father is gravely ill — was also told that no cause has been established for a second incident involving loss of power by three of four engines on an Air Canada Boeing 747 approaching Toronto Airport on June 7.

The stern warning from Mr. Justice Dubin to stop harassing the aviation inspector was handed out to Harold Deyarmond, regional controller for civil aviation in the Atlantic region.

"I will do everything in my power to see that no witness is harassed... and I will monitor your conduct," said the judge, whose one-man inquiry was set up one year ago by the former Conservative government.

He said it is essential for the work of the commission that all viewpoints be heard and that there be no intimidation of witnesses.

The warning was issued after 32-year-old David Slayter, an air ways inspector in Moncton, N.B., testified he has been subject to intimidation by Deyarmond and Raymond Gingles, Atlantic supervisor for air ways, since he presented a 300-page report to the inquiry.

The report, prepared at the request of Slayter's union, was critical of the transport department's maintenance of its own Beechcraft aircraft.

Slayter testified Tuesday he had been warned by Deyarmond prior to his January appearance that he was considered a troublemaker.

DESPITE CUTBACK

College offers two new ones

By GAIL DOTINGA
Herald Staff Writer
Despite recent cutbacks, Northwest Community College will be offering two new academic career programs this fall.

A dental assistant's program along with the Human Services Worker program will be added to the curriculum at the start of the 1980-81 term.

Students will have to complete 10 full months of courses in the dental assistant's program before being certified to work.

Northwest Community College offers this program in conjunction with the East Kootenay College, and Northern Lights College in Dawson Creek. The equipment is rotated among the three colleges every few years. Northwest will have it for the next several years.

The second program is Human Services Worker. Students are trained to become para-professional counselors in fields such as alcoholism or child care.

Another academic career program well established at the college is Early Childhood Education. Graduating students will be able to teach or work in day care centres.

A new course still in the planning stages is Northwest Studies. It is more of a Canadian studies program but focusing on the Northwest region.

The women's studies and the Worker Education Program will continue to be offered by the college this fall.

Along with the new programs, the college is expecting to have five or six new instructors next term.

The calendar is out and available at the college.

Registration for courses will take place from Sept. 2 to the 5.

For more information on the academic division call 635-6511 in Terrace or 632-4766 in Kitimat.

Chamber election

Arie de Lange of Terrace Co-Op and Sheila Jackson were elected first and second vice-presidents of the Terrace Chamber of Commerce.

The elections took place at the chamber's luncheon meeting on Tuesday at the Lakeside Hotel.

Afterwards members listened to a tape from Simma Holt on the problems encountered in dealing with bureaucrats.

COURT NEWS

Brian Bertelson was sentenced to 12 months in jail by Judge Darrall Collins in provincial court Tuesday. Judge Collins found him guilty on seven counts of false pretense with intent to defraud. Bertelson obtained money from several businesses in town under false pretense. He received six months in jail for each count, to be served concurrently.

On a charge of forgery, Bertelson received six months in jail and one year probation to be served consecutively, for using another person's signature on a government cheque.

Terrace residents responded well to the Red Cross appeal for blood donors Tuesday.

The workers at the clinic held at the arena here said they were almost overwhelmed that so many people responded.

It was not a wasted move, either. The need for blood supplies is great. With the medical professions increasing surgical skill and advances in techniques, more blood supplies are required if this surgery is going to be undertaken.

Mills Memorial Hospital here keeps a list of potential blood donors in case of an emergency. The Red Cross will be processing the names of those who gave blood here and names not already on the list at the local hospital will be added.

So, not only did the Terrace residents give a pint here, they let the local medical people know that there are more possible donors and what their blood types are.

This unselfish act of giving blood is not just an act of charity or community spirit, it is a little added protection for all of us.

A thank you to all those who gave.
Now, let's see what Kitimat does today.

OTHER VIEWS

From the HORN STANDARD
It's all very well to say that British Columbia will go it alone to build the rail line so Japan can have our northeast coal, but there would seem to be some question as to where the money for the line will come from.

Traditionally, the provincial government has been able to pour money into B.C. Rail mainly from the pension funds that it controls, but that situation is changing. For a long time, the Canada Pension Plan had lots of money coming in and very little going out, so the provinces had plenty from that source to invest. The B.C. government also had vast amounts under its control in the civil servants' and teachers' pension funds.

Now the Canada Pension is rapidly swinging into balance and can be expected to tilt the other way, with more demands on the fund than the income will cover. At the same time, the provincial pension funds have become the subject of public controversy and it is doubtful that the government would be in a position to make a bad investment with them now as it has done in the past.

Do doubt those are the reasons that the premier says the rail line will be built with natural gas revenues -- but that income is not very secure either. The federal government may soon take most of it in taxes, and even if it doesn't it has already pushed the price so high that sales, and revenues to the provincial government, are falling off.

Of course, much depends on the terms of sale of the coal, if a deal is made. It may be that there will be enough profit in hauling the coal so that B.C. Rail can go out and borrow the money from non-government sources. It may also be that pigs can fly.

If B.C. is lucky, the money for the rail line won't be there and the coal won't be sold. More likely, if the money can't be found elsewhere, the Japanese will be willing to lend it. They, after all, are the ones who have something to lose if the deal falls through.

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa - Barring political accidents -- or the early retirement of Prime Minister Trudeau -- it's four years to the next election.

So the Liberals, confident of short public memory, are testing you.

How much will you take from them when they start taking from you?

With time on their side they can afford to experiment in the delicate operation of plucking you for more revenue.

They need it.

Having overspent the country into by far its deepest-ever debt, they need more money not only to pay some of it off and reduce crippling interest charges, but to keep thousands -- yes, thousands -- of their party favorites and even helpful friends in the well-cushioned style to which they have become accustomed at the taxpayers' expense.

The way the politicians figure it, they might as well start now while they have time to spare before the next election and you have no chance for retribution at the ballot box.

So here they are, two or three months before their first budget, testing your initial reaction to the first of who-knows-how-many-tax-squeezes-to-come.

Mind you, so far they're only talking about it. Wisely, under closest questioning, they won't say yes or no, but just maybe.

Maybe they're going to end income tax indexing.

Ever since former Finance Minister John Turner brought it in, tax indexing has been your most important protection against inflation.

Actually, in dollars and sense, it wasn't that great, but it was the best thing you had going. John Turner said it was designed to protect you from the government profiting at your tax expense from the inflation it was creating.

He thought that sort of profit was immoral -- even for a politician.

Without it, you would be paying higher taxes on increases in income which weren't real, since they were only a reflection of inflation and not any real gain in actual buying power.

The indexing John Turner gave us tied personal tax exemptions to the rate of inflation.

It has resulted in raising a married couple's tax exemption from $3,000 in '73, just before John Turner indexed the system, to $4,970 last year.

For the close taxpayer it raised exemptions from $1,000 to $1,600.

If the government were to KILL it now, it would be the act of political cowards resorting to a sneaky underhanded way of collecting more tax in a terribly unfair manner.

Politically it would be the moral equivalent of robbery.

The government is thinking -- and talking -- about it in the belief that it would be unnoticeable and therefore practically painless.

Better to do it this way, under the table, than to come straight out with honest tax increases.

For this way, in junking tax indexing, nobody gets mad, because they don't feel it until income tax time when they or their accountant figure it out.

Why is the government doing it?

Flying a kite, as they say, testing your reaction.

If you don't say ouch, then they figure you're either not paying attention, don't understand, or are reconciled to having your pocket politically picked.

If you want to try to make sure it doesn't happen, then protest to your MP. Phone or write. Keep the pressure on.

They'll have plenty to say -- the Conservative and New Democratic opposition already have been saying it, but getting no commitments -- so as always happens in majority governments, the members of the party in power, the Liberals of course, will have the final OK or veto.

Don't let them play three card monte with your taxes. Keep them honest.

CONSUMER COMMENT

By CONSUMER AND CORPORATE AFFAIRS CANADA

Are you fed up with food prices? Do you wish you had more control over what the supermarket puts on its shelves? Would a friendly smile at the checkout make you happy?

Thousands of British Columbians have turned to and are successfully participating in food co-operatives as an alternative to supermarket shopping. They not only save money but also make decisions on the kinds of foods provided and how the co-op is managed.

And that friendly smile? It probably belongs to one of your neighbours.

The basic principles that all co-ops have in common are the democratic system of one vote per member, regardless of the number of shares held; the return of any yearly surpluses to members; open membership and an emphasis on the values of a co-operative system.

Participation in a food co-op affords many privileges. Aside from the price advantages, members are able to decide which brands the co-op should carry, the wholesalers to patronize, and the pricing and promotion policies.

If this sounds good and you would like to learn more about co-ops, the Vancouver Community Legal Assistance Society has put together a helpful booklet called "A Guide for the Incorporation and Operation of a Co-operative". It is available from the society at 257 East 11th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C. V6T 2C4 at the cost of $1.79 (including postage).

Information with the emphasis on the financial aspects of a co-op is available from the Co-operative Services Office, B.C. Central Credit Union, 1441 Creekside, Vancouver, B.C. V6B 3R9.

For broader information on co-operative philosophy and the status of co-operatives in Canada, contact the Co-operative union of Canada, 111 Sparks Street, Ottawa, Ontario K1S 5B5.

A grave blunder and not a cruel scheme

AJO, Ariz. (AP) — A grave blunder by four smugglers — not a cruel scheme — may have caused the tragedy in the Arizona desert where 13 people died in searing heat after a group of Salvadoreans were spirited across the border.

One of the smugglers is believed to be among the dead. "They didn't have enough water," said Lieut. Jack Garchow of the Pima County sheriff's department.

Interviews with the 14 survivors cast doubt on earlier reports that the smuggler-guides purposely abandoned the Salvadoreans, he said. He said the guides suffered along with the aliens they had smuggled into the United States.

One of the four suspected smugglers probably is among the dead, Garchow said. Two of the alleged smugglers survived the ordeal and were in custody, and the fourth was among three or four from the party who remained unaccounted for Tuesday.

Two of the suspects, the victim and one survivor, are Mexican, and the nationalities of the other two were not immediately known, Garchow said.

Meanwhile, federal charges of illegal entry into the United States will be filed against all the survivors, Garchow said.

Three women remain in serious condition at New Cornelia Hospital here and one woman and 10 men are being held at the Pima County sheriff's substation. The destination of the group was Los Angeles, he said.

A meeting here today was to determine what will be done with the 14 survivors. Consul-General Hugh Stanley Orantes, who came from the Salvadorean consulate in Los Angeles to interview the survivors, discounted reports that some survivors said they did not want to return home for fear of being killed.

"There have been no such threats and I believe these may have originated from people who did not want to return because of economic conditions," Orantes said.

Information about robbery and rape was reported by some border patrol agents, but sheriff's deputies did not share the theory that the illegal aliens were abandoned, robbed and raped.

Garchow also denied earlier reports that some of the victims were found wearing high heels. He said high-heeled shoes were found in one or two "ditty bags" — small bags for carrying toiletries — but that no women actually had the shoes on their feet.

PRINCE TO MARRY CATHOLIC?

LONDON (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Tuesday her Conservative government does not plan to change a controversial 1701 law that would bar Prince Charles from becoming king if he marries a Roman Catholic.

But a group of Opposition Labor MPs introduced a motion to repeal those parts of the Act of Settlement which they said are "discriminatory, offensive and insulting to the Catholic community in the United Kingdom."

The bill will be debated July 29. The row erupted over press reports that Prince Charles, 31, heir to the throne, might choose Princess Marie-Astrid of Luxembourg, a Catholic, as his bride.

Once enthroned, the prince would become the leader of the Anglican Church.

The Act of Settlement was passed by the English Parliament to ensure that only a Protestant could succeed to the throne and that all Catholics, or persons marrying Catholics, were forever to be excluded, as though they "were naturally dead."

It arose from the turmoil and religious persecution that followed

King Henry VIII's break with Rome in 1534, when he set up the Church of England with himself as its head.

Militant Northern Ireland Protestants sought assurances from Mrs. Thatcher's government that the Act of Settlement would not be changed. Then four leaders of the Protestant Orange Order in Northern Ireland said that the British secretary for Northern Ireland assured them that the law would not be changed to allow Prince Charles to marry Princess Marie-Astrid or any other Catholic.

Asked about the matter in the House of Commons on Tuesday, Mrs. Thatcher said: "The Act of Settlement remains in force and the government has no plans to change it."

But Mrs. Thatcher would not be drawn into a discussion on Prince Charles.

The prince has so far not indicated any public interest in marrying Princess Marie-Astrid, but a parliamentary refusal to reform the Act of Settlement would pressure him not to wed the Catholic.

High-ranking justice and religious figures in Britain, however, have made it clear that they will do what Buckingham Palace wants. Queen Elizabeth has been reported by gossip columnists as in favor of a match between her son and the 26-year-old princess.

The principal sponsor of the bill to change the Act of Settlement, Norman Hogg, a Presbyterian Labor MP for Dunbartonshire East, told reporters Tuesday that his motion has nothing to do with Prince Charles.

"We are not part of any speculation as to the matrimonial intentions or otherwise of the heir to the throne," Hogg said.

GISCARD d'ESTAING... welcomed

Sombre picture painted

WUERZBURG (Reuter) — Opposition Leader Franz Josef Strauss told President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing today that West Germany and France should not build their partnership against the United States.

In a speech welcoming the visiting French head of state to Bavaria, Strauss, the state's conservative premier, said the Franco-German relationship could not be "a two-state union against a wider European association or confronting the United States."

Painting a sombre picture of the world situation, Strauss said: "You, Mr. President, began your visit to the Federal Republic by saying that Europe's world role should be restored."

"Today, neither a single state nor the addition of several states can provide the necessary basis. What we need is rather a real increase in power."

Strauss has repeatedly urged the greatest possible support for the United States.

He has made no secret of his distrust of overtures made to the Soviet Union during the current world situation, such as Giscard d'Estaing's meeting with Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev in Warsaw in May.

Six die in crowd for Pope

FORTALEZA, Brazil (AP) — A crowd rushing to see Pope John Paul trampled at least six persons to death today at a soccer stadium in this Brazilian coastal city.

Officials said another spectator died of a heart attack in the panic.

Police were still trying to determine the exact number of deaths, and injuries were "in the area of 100," said Heilo de Araujo Passos, a state government spokesman.

The incident occurred about two hours before the pontiff, on a 12-day visit to Brazil, was scheduled to arrive in this city of 1.2 million people to inaugurate a conference organized by Brazil's bishops.

He was to greet the people of Fortaleza.

State officials said the rush of hundreds of spectators occurred either when the pressing crowd pushed down a door to the Castellan Stadium, or when the door was opened by stadium workers.

'They're spies, not hostages'

A Tehran newspaper reports that it interviewed 23 members of the new Iranian parliament, and many of them said the 53 U.S. hostages whose fate they are supposed to decide should be tried as spies.

"They should all be tried, not as individuals who committed crimes but as a group who helped the shah's regime oppress the masses," the newspaper Ettelaat said deputy Hassan Yousefi Eshkevari told it.

It quoted another deputy, Mohammad Hadi Ab Khodai, as saying: "They are spies, not hostages." Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, has said that the parliament, or Majlis, will decide the fate of the Americans for whom today is their 29th day in captivity. But the Majlis is bogged down in factional disputes, and another Tehran newspaper, Donya Iran, predicted that it will not begin its debate on the hostages before October.

There were these other developments in the Iranian situation:

An Iranian emigre in Washington with close contacts at home said an estimated 20 Iranian extremists are in Egypt or trying to get there to assassinate nate relatives and associates of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi when they come to Cairo if he dies.

The emigre said those to be killed include the shah's twin sister, Princess Ashraf, her son Prince Shahram and the former ambassador to Washington, Ardeshir Zahedi.

The shah, who is being treated in a Cairo hospital for complications following chemotherapy for cancer of the liver, was reported gaining strength. A spokesman for the deposed monarch said he was "full of energy all of a sudden" and "so much better than he's been in the past few days."

President Anwar Sadat visited Pahlavi Tuesday night. The doctors told the Egyptian leader the shah's condition is improving gradually. Egypt's official Middle East news agency reported.

In Tehran, 131 women employed by the police and military services were fired because they refused to wear the traditional full-length long-sleeved chador and head veil to work. Regulations requiring all female government employees to wear traditional Islamic dress on the job went into effect Tuesday.

Reagan camp plans platform

DETROIT (AP) — Conservative supporters of Ronald Reagan are exercising commanding control over the drafting of a Republican party platform, easily winning preliminary approval for planks dropping support for the equal rights amendment and advocating a constitutional ban on legalized abortions.

Heated floor battles on both issues are possible at the convention next week, but Reagan strategists are optimistic the controversy will subside by then.

The decision on the ERA plank reverses a 40-year commitment in Republican platforms for ratification of a women's-rights amendment to the U.S. constitution. ERA supporters vowed to go before the full 106-member platform committee today to try to reverse Tuesday's action by the human resources subcommittee.

But they acknowledged they had an uphill fight.

Senator John Tower (Rep. Tex.), the committee chairman, predicted his committee would uphold the subcommittee's decisions at today's session. And, if ERA supporters are unable to get the 27 signatures needed to bring the issue to the convention floor as a minority report, they will have to abandon the effort.

Mary Louise Smith, a former Republican national committee chairman who supports the ERA, accused her colleagues of taking "a short-term political view" to accommodate Reagan. She said the vote eventually may backfire on the party and cost Republicans' votes in November.

"We will go beyond the platform committee to the floor if we have to," she said.

"Whether we could get the support needed to do that, I don't know. We can try."

The plank recommended by the drafting unit squares with Reagan's own position of support for equal rights and opportunities for women, but it opposes spelling out those rights in the constitution.

Lions catch everything in big win

George Brancato promised he'd get more involved in Ottawa Rough Riders' offence this season but Calgary Stampede's wish he'd left his playbook at home.

Brancato, who allowed his quarterback to call the shots in previous years, sent plays in from the bench Tuesday night and the coach's strategies helped the Rough Riders post a 26-20 comeback win over Calgary Stampede in Ottawa.

In the only other game on the opening night of the Canadian Football League season, British Columbia Lions slammed Saskatchewan Roughriders 39-24.

In Vancouver, a crowd of 19,538 saw the Lions score 33 points in the second quarter to assure themselves of the win.

Quarterback Joe Papas tossed three touchdown passes on the night, two of them to tight end Harry Holt during the second-quarter blitz.

Wideback Terry Bailey also caught a touchdown pass and running back John Henry White plunged over for the other B.C. touchdown, while Lui Passaglia kicked three field goals and four converts. The other two B.C. points came on a safety touch.

Flanker Dwight Edwards scored two Saskatchewan touchdowns on passes from backup quarterback Danny Sanders and veteran linebacker Bill Manchuk scored the other touchdown on a blocked kick in the B.C. endzone. Bob Macoriti completed Saskatchewan's scoring with a field goal and three converts.

The Lions intercepted four of Sanders' passes, including two by converted receiver Leon Bright, after Sanders replaced injured Saskatchewan starter John Hurnagel at quarterback in the opening quarter.

Each team had 17 first downs. B.C. had a net offense of 275 yards, compared with 224 for Saskatchewan. The Roughriders had a meagre 46 yards rushing.

Four more teams see their first action tonight, with Montreal Alouettes in Toronto to play the Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Edmonton to meet the defending Grey Cup champion Eskimos.

Brancato said he directed play selection for the Ottawa offence "to take pressure off (quarterback Condredge) Holloway so he could read the defence and tell me what he noticed."

The Rough Riders had won one of four exhibition games while the Stampede took three of their pre-season games, making Calgary the favorite.

"It was a real shocker to win the first game," admitted Brancato. "No one expected us to win."

Ottawa trailed 17-6 at one point in the second quarter but, to the delight of most of the 21,064 spectators, it was 20-20 entering the final quarter.

Ottawa wound up with an edge in the vital statistics by the end of the game — 359 yards' net offence to the Stampede's 250 and 28 first downs compared with Calgary's 24.

Two field goals by Gerry Organ in the fourth quarter provided Ottawa with its winning margin. Organ had two other field goals and a touchdown. Sanders scored the Rough Riders' two touchdowns. Bruce Thredgill and Lewis scored touchdowns and kicker J.T. Hay scored field goals for the Riders.

Hay was good on 15 of 17 attempts for 257 yards and 10 interceptions. Calgary's backs Ken Johnson and Thredgill hit on 15 of 33 for 165 yards and two interceptions. The Rough Riders had 133 yards rushing, while the Stampede managed 85.

Tony Gabriel, who caught four passes for 120 yards, and Peter Stenson, on the receiving end of three Holloway passes for 48 yards, didn't mind the workload placed on them. Crump was the game's top rusher, picking up 66 yards on 18 carries, and scoring Ottawa's touchdowns on a one-yard plunge and an 11-yard ramble. Jim Sykes led Calgary rushing with 43 yards on 12 carries while Tom Forzani had 73 yards on six catches.

SKB wins

SKB Salvage, fresh from their victory in senior C men's softball zone playoffs last weekend, continued rolling at Riverside Park Tuesday night.

They trounced Holden's 15-2 in league play as they led 3-1 after the first inning and never looked back. WP Ron Daciuk had no trouble registering the win as Warren Trach hit three singles and scored three times. Tome Bogue had a double and triple and Paul Walker scored four runs.

Holmes wants the $8 million

BLOOMINGTON, MINN. (AP) — Larry Holmes, showing no signs of having successfully defended his World Boxing Council heavyweight title the night before, said Tuesday he will fight Muhammad Ali next — if he gets $8 million. "I've been heavyweight champion for two years and I've been put down," said Holmes, who made Scott LeDoux his seventh victim in seven title defences Monday night.

But Holmes has not been able to escape Ali's shadow, and often has been a target of criticism, despite his unbeaten record in 35 fights. "I'm tired of being put down all day and all night," said Holmes, 30.

He handled LeDoux easily while being taunted from ring-side by Ali.

"He's ignorant," said Holmes, "I don't care if he comes here and does what he does, but he tried to distract me from the fight."

"He didn't show me any respect. I'll fight him for $8 million, not for $7½ million. That's what they said they'll give me over there."

Over there is Egypt. Ali said he wants to make his comeback in Cairo and promoter Don King is trying to put together a package for

Eskimos take aim at title

EDMONTON (CP) — Placekicker Trevor Kennerd gets a chance tonight to break into the Canadian Football League scoring columns in his old stomping ground.

But Kennerd, 24, who considers himself a graduate of the Edmonton football system, will be wearing the blue and gold colors of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The contest opens the season for the defending Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos and for the Bombers, who finished fourth in the Western Football Conference in 1979.

Unless the Bombers can generate a lot more offense than last year, Kennerd will likely get several chances to prove his field goal ability.

The game starts at 8:30 PDT and will be shown by the CTV network in the West. In other CFL action tonight, Montreal Alouettes visit Toronto Argonauts.

The Eskimos plan to shift outside linebackers Dale Porter to an inside spot tonight, to fill the gap left when Harry Walters suffered a knee injury in a pre-season game.

Walters is expected to be out for 30 days.

Edmonton head coach Hugh Campbell intends to alternate veteran quarterbacks Tom Wilkinson and Warren Moon with Neil Lumsden handling the power-running chores.

Kennerd was summoned to the Winnipeg training camp three weeks ago, when the Bombers suddenly found themselves in need of a placekicking specialist.

Bernie Ruoff, who had handled all the Bombers' kicking chores since 1973, was traded to Hamilton Tiger Cats of the Eastern Football Conference.

The Bombers have Bob Cameron to handle punts, but wanted Kennerd, who tried unsuccessfully to catch on with the Tiger Cats last year, for placements.

Kennerd, a soccer-style kicker who doesn't punt, didn't give up after a one-week tryout last season with Seattle Sea Hawks of the National Football League.

"During the winter I wrote letters to four CFL teams I thought might need placekickers," he said. One of the four letters was to the Blue Bombers.

In pre-season games, Kennerd connected on four of five field goal tries against the Argonauts and went four-for-four against B.C. Lions.

Kennerd wanted to play outside linebackers as a junior-age player in the Edmonton system, but switched to placekicker on the suggestion of his brother, Forrest.

"I never had a kicking coach," said Kennerd. "I had to go out an awful lot of lonely nights and kick the ball around a lot. It's taken me five years to learn how to kick the ball and I'm still learning every day."

As a kicker, Kennerd works out on his own, booting field goals or jogging while the other members of the team go through their various drills.

LARRY HOLMES

...All next a fight in September or October.

"They've given Ali $175,000 front money (for Egypt)," said Holmes. "They haven't given me anything. All needs me."

Then, before leaving for the airport to return to his home in Easton, Pa., Holmes said: "I want to fight Leon Spinks. He sent me a telegram and said if I wanted to retire, he'd oblige me. That's who I want to fight in October."

Spinks is the last man to fight Ali. Ali outpointed him in New Orleans in 1978 to regain the World Boxing Association championship now held by Mike Weaver.

Weaver is scheduled to defend it against South African Gerrie Coetzee in South Africa on Oct. 25. Of course, that fight would not come off should Weaver get a chance to fight Ali.

LeDoux's plans were not known, but the loss dropped him from the ranks of serious contenders. He was stopped in the seventh round Monday night.

Red's Griffey leads the way

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Nobody was exactly doing off in the dugout, but we didn't have a lot to cheer about in the first four innings," said Ken Griffey of the National League all-stars.

Griffey, an outfielder for Cincinnati Reds, playing in his second all-star baseball game, finally brought the National League to life in the fifth inning of the 51st all-star game Tuesday night at Dodger Stadium. He blasted a towering home run that started the NL rolling to its 4-2 victory.

The solo homer off New York Yankees' Tommy John came after Steve Stone of Baltimore Orioles, the AL starter, pitched three perfect innings and John also was perfect in the fourth.

"It was a fast ball inside and I knew when I hit it that it was gone," said a smiling Griffey, who also had a single and was voted the game's most valuable player. "I felt really good about it because I thought it would light a fire under us."

"We were pumped up to win, but we needed something to get us started. I'm very excited about being named MVP," added Griffey, whose .310 career batting average during the 1970s was the fifth best among all major league hitters. "I can't wait to talk to my wife."

National League manager Chuck Tanner was beaming after the victory, the NL's ninth straight and 17th in the last 18 all-star contests.

"After you win the World Series and win this one, what's left?" asked Tanner, who guided Pittsburgh Pirates to the 1979 World Series championship. "But winning the World Series and the all-star game tastes so good, I'd like to do it all again."

Tanner credited Griffey, who was voted a starter on the team, with getting the NL in gear.

"Ken Griffey really sparked us," Tanner said, "especially by hitting that homer against an outstanding pitcher like Tommy John, a guy who doesn't give up too many home runs."

Griffey said the oneness in the series puzzled him, too, adding, "They made a few mistakes this time and we took advantage of it."

"I think that's the mark of a better team."

Los Angeles Dodgers' pitcher Jerry Reuss, who hurled a no-hitter against San Francisco earlier this season, threw just one inning for the NL, the sixth, striking out the side and ending up with the victory.

"I just happened to come in and then we scored some runs," said Reuss, who watched his NL team-mates go ahead to stay with two runs in the bottom of the sixth to make it 3-2.

Stone rocks but NL rolls

LOS ANGELES (AP) — No one — the managers, the players or the fans — can explain the superiority of the National League over the American in baseball's all-star game.

But the Nationals won again, for the ninth straight time, even after Steve Stone of Baltimore pitched a perfect first three innings for the Americans on Tuesday night at Dodger Stadium.

Ken Griffey, not voted to a starting position by the fans, belted Tommy John's first pitch to him in the fifth inning for a home run which gave the National League its first hit and sparked a 4-2 victory.

Griffey's Cincinnati team-mate Ray Knight commented after the game: "His home run kind of fired us up and everybody started going about the task."

The NL task was helped by an error on a tough play by New York Yankees second baseman Willie Randolph in a two-run sixth inning.

The Nationals have won 17 of the last 18 meetings, the last AL victory coming in 1971.

Manager Earl Weaver of American Leaguers in 1971, was at a loss to explain why his charges lost this time and why the league has such a string of losses.

"I know they wanted to win and they played to win," said Weaver. "You watched the game — you tell me."

Chuck Tanner of the defending World Series champion Pittsburgh Pirates said the difference was offence.

"I knew our squad had too good hitters to be shut down all the way," he said. "I can't explain the streak."

The Americans took a 2-0 lead on Fred Lynn's homer with Rod Carew on base in the fifth inning.

With one out in the sixth, after Griffey's homer, Knight singled with one out. Phil Garner grounded another single and George Hendrick singled to score Knight with the tying run. Ed Farmer relieved John and was greeted with the tough grounder by Dave Winfield that got through Randolph.

Garner scored on the play and the NL was ahead.

Griffey, who also hit a single, was voted the game's most valuable player.

The NL finished with four runs on seven hits with no errors and the AL had two runs on seven hits with two errors.

The winning pitcher was the Dodgers' Jerry Reuss, who hurled only the sixth when the Nationals went ahead. Bruce Sutter of Chicago Cubs finished up.

Pre-game festivities were lively and wound up with fireworks which started a brush fire on a hill behind a parking lot. So, while Stone was hurling his perfect innings, a helicopter was dropping water to quench the flames as effectively as Stone quenched the NL bats.

Stone became the first pitcher since Denny McLain in 1965 to pitch three perfect innings in an all-star game.

The crowd of 56,068 was the largest ever in Dodger Stadium, surpassing the 55,997 that watched a World Series game in 1978.

Tanner started flame-throwing J. R. Richard but limited him to two innings because of recent arm troubles. The Dodgers' Bob Welch came on and worked three innings, giving up the home run to Lynn.

SPORTS BRIEFS

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League have signed John Bednarski, a free agent defenceman with eight years experience in three professional hockey leagues. Bednarski, 25, began his pro career in Rochester and spent most of his eight-year career in the American Hockey League. The 5-foot-10, 195 pound defenceman also has played 100 games in the NHL, all but one with New York Rangers.

COMMITTEE RETURNS — LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Baseball Writers' Association of American

voted at its annual all-star meeting Tuesday to re-instate the screening committee for Hall of Fame candidates. The move, subject to approval by the Hall's board of directors, would reduce the number of names on the ballot and help eliminate the presence of players the BBWAA feels are unworthy for consideration.

FIVE MORE SIGN UP — PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Five more countries have accepted invitations to the Liberty Bell track and field meet, raising to 25 the number of teams expected to compete July 16-17 at Franklin Field, officials said Tuesday. The latest entries are Sudan, Thailand, Zaire, Upper Volta and Morocco. Canada has also entered the meet.

TOO TALL BACK — DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League announced Tuesday they have agreed to terms with Ed (Too Tall) Jones to play football this year. Jones announced his retirement June 19, 1979, to go into boxing, which he termed his first love. He appeared in several pro bouts before announcing several weeks ago he was returning to football.

They aren't superior, but...

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was business as usual at Dodger Stadium Tuesday night, the National League won another all-star baseball game. But American Leaguers weren't about to concede inferiority.

Second baseman Willie Randolph, whose error on a ball hit by Dave Winfield in the sixth inning enabled the Yankees to score, also took exception with the official scorer.

"I don't think they're a superior league," said AL first baseman Rod Carew, who had two hits, a walk and stole a base in a losing cause. "They've gotten the big hit at the right time."

"I hear a lot of things people are saying, that we're not as aggressive enough, that we're a bunch of baloney."

The setback was the ninth straight for the AL and its 17th loss in the last 18 all-star games. Once ahead 12-4 in the series that began in 1933, the AL now trails 32-18-1.

Randolph also had two hits for the losers, but it was a rough evening for New York Yankees second baseman. He was charged with two errors, including the big one in the sixth inning, and was picked off first base by pitcher Bob Welch after a leadoff single in the third.

Three straight singles by the NL had tied the game in the sixth and Winfield was the hitter with one out. He sliced an outside pitch to the left of Randolph, who tried to shortstop the potential doubleplay ball but couldn't come up with it as the go-ahead run came home.

"I don't see how they could give me an error on that play," Randolph said. "The ball was hit to my left, it had a funny knuckleball spin."

"I'd go for it the same way if it happened again. If the scorer thought it was an error, that's what he says, it was just happy to be here."

On the pickoff play, Randolph said: "Nobody told me he had a good move."

"I didn't feel him (NL first baseman Steve Garvey) touch me but Welch gave me a good move. I'm not going to worry about who's on the mound. Getting picked off is all a part of being a good baserunner."

AL starting pitcher Steve Stone of Baltimore, who retired the nine batters he faced on only 24 pitches, said he was disappointed his team lost, but not too disappointed.

"I certainly hoped that we would win, but when you face nine batters in three innings you have to be pleased about the outcome," said Stone. "I don't think you could call what happened NL supremacy."

"They've done better in this game but the AL East is the strongest division in baseball. One game a year certainly doesn't make supremacy and the World Series has shown that. We're a pretty strong league."

Collie Almost Collared By Law's Long Arm

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recently read that an elderly San Francisco widow died, leaving instructions in her will that "Sido," her pet 10-year-old collie, be destroyed as soon as possible. She feared that her beloved pet would not have a good life after her death.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intervened in an effort to save Sido's life, and now there's a big court battle going on. Because of the publicity, hundreds of people have offered to give Sido a good home. However, the law states that animals are "property," and as such, the owner of said property has a right to decide its fate.

Where do you stand, Abby?

SAN MATEO OBSERVER

DEAR OBSERVER: I'm for preserving Sido's life. This is another example clearly showing that what is legal is not always moral. And if the law gives an animal owner the right to destroy a healthy pet, then the law should be changed.

P.S. You'll be glad to hear that Sido's life has been saved.

DEAR ABBY: A buddy of mine from work came by the house to pick me up for a weekend fishing trip. When I introduced him to my wife, his eyes lit up, and he said, "You've got to be crazy to leave a swell-looking dame like that alone for the weekend."

WEEKEND FISHERMAN

DEAR FISHERMAN: He could be right. The next time you go fishing, be sure to take that buddy with you.

DEAR ABBY: This summer my son, who is a Boy Scout, wants to go on a "family camping trip" sponsored by the Boy Scouts. He has asked his mother and me and his three sisters to go with him.

His mother and I are divorced, but we get along fairly well. Perhaps I should point out that we are nothing more than "friends" now. I have been dating a very nice woman, and she doesn't think it's right for me to go on this family camping trip. I really don't know what to do. What do you think?

CONFUSED IN OHIO

DEAR CONFUSED: I think if you felt comfortable turning down your son in favor of accommodating your ladyfriend, you wouldn't have written to me. Follow your hunch and make your Boy Scout happy.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to thank you for your explanation as to why the ERA is a national need. May I add that the 19th Amendment guaranteeing women the vote became part of the Constitution in 1920. Louisiana did not ratify it until 1970, and Mississippi has never ratified it. In Mississippi it is introduced annually and annually voted down.

Louisiana ratified in response to a request from the League of Women Voters asking the state to honor the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage. Thus Louisiana and Mississippi women have been able to take part in the democratic process for the past 50 and 60 years because the rest of the nation saw the inequity and injustice and worked to make it whole.

Passage of the Equal Rights Amendment will drive the last golden spike needed to provide a firm platform of equality in law for all Americans. Sincerely, CYNTHIA W., NEW ORLEANS
